

Letter of Recommendation

To Whom It May Concern,

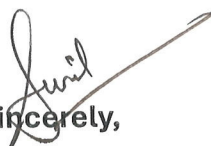

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Mr. Amit Bhise, who currently serves as Lead Data Scientist at Suzlon Group, reporting within my organization.

I have had the opportunity to observe Amit's work closely and can confidently state that he is an exceptionally capable professional with a strong foundation in data science, artificial intelligence, and applied research. Over the last year, he has led complex analytical initiatives, translated theoretical concepts into scalable enterprise solutions, and demonstrated a rare ability to bridge deep technical knowledge with real-world business impact.

Amit consistently exhibits intellectual curiosity, methodological rigor, and independent thinking—qualities that are essential for success in a doctoral program. His interest in advanced research, particularly in areas such as artificial intelligence, machine learning, and applied analytics, is well-aligned with the demands of a PhD. He approaches problems analytically, questions assumptions, and shows persistence in exploring solutions beyond surface-level answers.

In addition to his technical strengths, Amit demonstrates maturity, discipline, and leadership. He collaborates effectively with cross-functional teams, mentors junior colleagues, and communicates complex ideas with clarity. These attributes, combined with his industry experience, will enable him to contribute meaningfully to academic research and collaborative scholarly environments.

I strongly believe that Amit is well-prepared for the rigors of doctoral study and will be a valuable addition to your research program. I recommend him without reservation for admission to your PhD program.

Sincerely,
Sunil Nair
